Delphil,

a WinBoard and UCI compliant chess engine written by Philippe Fabiani in Pascal using Delphi 7 ^[1], first released in April 2004. Delphil started its life as Delphi port of Tom Kerrigan's TSCP, and in 2009, Delphil still owned about 80% of TSCP's code base with move generation and search almost identical. Most changes were done in evaluation, further a tranposition table, various extensions and null move pruning were added ^[2]. Delphil 3.2, released on September 28, 2014, applies a parallel search with up to 32 processors simultaneously, and is able to probe Nalimov Tablebases ^[3].
